Teenage Pregnancy and Parenting Program

Agency Overview

Founded in 1889, Family Service Agency of San Francisco is the oldest nonsectarian, nonprofit charitable social-services provider in the City and County of San Francisco. Our mission is to strengthen families by providing caring, effective, and innovative social services, with special emphasis on the needs of low-income families, children, and the elderly and disabled people, thus improving the quality of life for all San Franciscans.

Program Description

As the local provider of the California state program known as the Adolescent Family Life Program, San Francisco's Teenage Pregnancy and Parenting Project (TAPP) is a comprehensive case management program for pregnant and parenting teens city-wide. TAPP case managers help ensure that these teens have access to all available health, education, and social services for which they are eligible, regardless of whether they are in school. Focusing on the reduction in second births to teenage parents, academic enrollment and retention of pregnant and parenting teenagers, reduction of low birth-weight babies, and reduction in risk behaviors, TAPP also provides a myriad of support services, including child development, parenting education, childcare support services, nutrition, health education, job readiness, mental health programs, relationship violence prevention, and academic counseling. These support services are provided at TAPP as "one-stop" shopping or are facilitated through longstanding partnerships with other youth-serving agencies.
